Your fit note has expired

You will be treated as capable for work

Dear Joe Tarbet

Your fit note (also known as sick note or statement of fitness for work) has expired.

You have not reported a new fit note or provided a good reason for failing to do so.

This means we could not assess your health condition or disability.

What this means

We will now consider you to be capable for work and work-related activity.

If you have been referred for a Work Capability Assessment, this will be cancelled.

To continue getting Universal Credit, you will need to review and agree your Claimant Commitment.

Depending on your circumstances this could include:

- searching for work
- preparing for work
- doing work-related activities

Use your journal to contact us if you have
