Dear Lorraine Docherty

All women between the ages of 50 and 70 are invited to go for breast screening every three years. Evidence shows routine screening in this age range is the best way to find breast cancer early.

As you were unable to attend your last screening appointment we recently wrote to you offering you the opportunity to make your own appointment for a time that suits you. To date we have not heard from you but we are keen that you do not miss out on a local appointment should you wish one. As before you can arrange an appointment by contacting the breast screening service on either the number or email above.

If you're getting in touch by email, please include your name, date of birth, telephone number and let us know if you have any special requirements or dates you're unable to attend for an appointment.

If you have any questions about making an appointment, the appointment itself, or don't wish to attend at this time, please let us know by contacting the service using the details above. We can then release the appointment slots we are holding and give them to others.

If we do not hear from you following this reminder we will assume you do not wish to attend breast screening at this time. We will contact you again in 3 years' time, if you remain within the age range for breast screening. In the interim should you decide you would like a breast screening appointment please contact the centre (details above). We urge that you remain breast aware during this time and contact your GP if you have any worries or concerns regarding your breast health.

Yours sincerely

Dr Louise Hill
