Your prices are changing

Hi Thomas,

Ofgem has announced a change to the energy price cap. So, here's a summary of how your prices will be changing from 1 July.

The energy price cap is reviewed every three months by Ofgem, and it sets a limit on the amount you can be charged per unit of gas and electricity.

Remember - what you pay will always depend on your usage, so we do all we can to help you keep costs down.

Your energy bill has been discounted from 1 April following action taken by the UK Government in the 2025 Budget. You can find out more information at gov.uk/yourenergybill

From 1 July based on your usage, your estimated annual cost will be £911.56. Your actual costs each month will vary based on if you've got credit or debt on your account. You can see a full breakdown of your new prices in this letter.

We know lots of people are still struggling to afford their energy. We have lots of resources on our website, including how the energy price cap works, if you're finding it difficult.

As things change, you'll hear from us regularly so you always know what will happen with your energy costs.

Thank you,

Utilita Energy
