At the age of 12, I was placed in Castlemilk Care Home in Glasgow. From the moment I arrived, I felt unwanted and humiliated. I was left standing outside the care home on my own for a long time while members of staff walked past me, laughing and ignoring me. I was a frightened child, alone and desperate for reassurance, but instead I was treated with cruelty and neglect. There was one female member of staff who showed me some kindness. I would do her hair, and in return she made me feel momentarily comforted. She was the only person who was ever nice to me, but she was not always on shift, and when she was not there, I was completely alone. I was often secluded and left in my room for long periods of time, which made me feel isolated, forgotten, and worthless.

There was a boy in the home who was described as "feral." He would run into our rooms at night, jump on us in our beds, and hit us. This happened repeatedly. The staff did nothing to protect us. Instead, the abuse escalated. Members of staff began to hit me and push me around. I learned very quickly that I was not safe and that no one was going to help me.

During the summer holidays, the abuse became even more frightening. A male member of staff, known as the house father, was on shift. He was also a student. There was a room downstairs where he would take us. He forced me to dance and sing for him. I was extremely nervous and told him I did not want to. I apologised repeatedly. In response, he slapped me hard across the face and told me that if I ever said no again, I would get more.

I was absolutely terrified. That night, I was so scared that I wet myself. My face was sore, smelt of urine, and was visibly marked for several days afterwards. I did not know what he was going to do to me next. I lived in constant fear of him. He treated me differently from the other children, often forcing me to sit facing the wall as a form of punishment and control. He regularly embarrassed and insulted us in front of others. The humiliation was deliberate and cruel. Although he was the only staff member who physically assaulted me in this way, the mental abuse was constant and ongoing throughout my time there. No adult ever tried to stop what was happening. I was made to believe that I would get into trouble with the police for what he was doing to me. He threatened me repeatedly, and as a child, I believed him. I thought I had done something wrong and that I would be punished if I spoke out.

The other children were also being beaten. We were all being abused. We clung to one another and tried to form relationships because we received no love, care, or compassion from the adults who were meant to protect us. The punishments in this home were cruel and terrifying. I was genuinely scared for my life when this man was around.

The adults would also assist us with bathing and claimed they had to wash our bodies. At the time, I did not feel able to question this, but as an adult looking back, I do not believe this was normal or appropriate.

I remained in Castlemilk Care Home for just over a year before being placed with my aunties. By that time, I was severely affected by what I had experienced. I lived every day in fear. I was emotionally broken and suffered severe mental and physical abuse. The impact of what happened there has never left me.

I suffer from PTSD and depression as a direct result of my experiences in care, and I have done so since I was a young girl. I require medication to help me cope and to try to live some form of normal life. Even now, memories of this time trigger intense distress, fear, and anxiety. I am still deeply affected by what happened to me, and I will never forget how I was treated or how it made me feel.
