My first memory of being in care was at the age of 14, and from the very start it was a traumatic and frightening experience. I was placed in Naing Dale Care Home, where I was subjected to constant physical and mental abuse by staff members who were supposed to care for and protect me.

One of the staff members, Mr Forthy, repeatedly struck me across the back of my hands with a cane. This happened daily. The pain was intense, but what hurt even more was the humiliation. I was constantly shouted at, called names, and made to feel worthless. I was treated as if I had no value as a human being.

The abuse did not come from just one person. Other staff members, including Mr Davis, were also physically abusive towards me. Mr Wilson was in charge of the care home and was deeply involved in the abuse. He lived at the home and regularly took part in the violence. I was punched, slapped, kicked, and beaten with canes on a daily basis. I was left with visible marks and scars, particularly on my knees, which are still with me today. My body was covered in bruises, but no one ever questioned how they got there.

The mental abuse was relentless. I lived in constant fear and anxiety, never knowing when the next attack would come. I suffered in silence because no one listened and no one helped. I felt completely powerless. I saw others being abused as well, and it became clear that we were all trapped in a system where our voices did not matter.

Your statement for Care setting 2 continued

When I was transferred to Oakbank, my first experiences were much the same, only worse because there were more people involved. The abuse continued every day. Over time, I began to suffer even more, but I also became numb to it. I started to believe that this level of violence and cruelty was normal. I believed this was just how life was meant to be.

In both care homes, I suffered ongoing mental and physical abuse. There was no privacy and no sense of safety. I felt unwanted, abandoned, and completely alone. It felt as though no one cared whether I lived or died.

The abuse has had a lasting and devastating effect on my mental health. I continue to struggle with the memories of what happened to me. Even now, I find it extremely difficult to talk about these experiences. The fear, pain, and trauma I endured in care have stayed with me throughout my life and continue to affect my wellbeing on a daily basis.

What happened to me in care is something I will never forget. It has shaped who I am, how I see the world, and how I cope with everyday life. The mental and physical abuse I suffered has left deep scars that I still live with today.
