When I was first taken into care, I remember being left alone, feeling scared, confused, and completely uncertain about what was happening to me. I vividly recall the day social services arrived to take me from my home. I did not understand why this was happening, and no one explained anything to me. The confusion and fear I felt in those first moments stayed with me for a long time and set the tone for the trauma that followed.

I was placed into foster care with a family at 17 Forth Street in Uddingston, the adults being Mrs. Joyce Finnan and Daniel Finnan. At first, I felt a small sense of relief, thinking I might be safe, but it didn't last. My emotions were a mix of fear, sadness, and uncertainty. I wanted to understand what was happening to me, but no one took the time to explain anything.

Within a few weeks, the abuse began. It was carried out primarily by the couple's three children, especially their daughter. I was singled out daily, treated differently from everyone else, and subjected to constant physical and emotional abuse. They would pull my hair, push me, hit me, and laugh while calling me "the lonely one." They constantly reminded me that the people I was living with were not my parents, emphasizing that I did not belong.

The bullying was relentless. They would come into rooms where I was alone just to push me around, laugh at me, and break my belongings. They would kick, punch, slap, and chase me. I tried desperately to fit in, to be accepted, but nothing I did was ever enough. I never understood why this was happening to me, and it left me feeling worthless, scared, and completely isolated. The adults, Mrs. Joyce and Daniel Finnan, were rarely present. At the time, I hoped they didn't know what was happening, but thinking back, I now realise they must have been aware.

Living in this environment left a deep and lasting impact on me. I felt different, alone, and depressed for the entirety of my time there. Even though I had a roof over my head, I was terrorized every day, and it affected every part of my life. I carry the trauma with me to this day. I suffer from complex PTSD and anxiety, and I struggle with day-to-day activities that most people take for granted. I find it extremely difficult to communicate with new people, and trusting anyone is a constant challenge.

The abuse I experienced in foster care has affected every aspect of my life. Relationships, my sense of self-worth, and my ability to feel safe in the world have all been deeply affected. I continue to deal with the long-term psychological and emotional scars from being bullied, terrorized, and isolated as a child in care. The memories of what I went through are vivid and painful, and they serve as a reminder of the lasting damage that was done to me. Being in care was meant to provide protection, but instead, I was subjected to fear, violence, and emotional cruelty. I want to ensure that my experiences are fully understood as part of the Scottish Redress process so that the lasting impact on my life is acknowledged and addressed.
