During my time at the school, it was awful. They used to come into the dormitory at night while I was sleeping, and they would beat me up. I was left black and blue on many occasions. I remember being terrified to go to sleep because I never knew when they would come in. The nuns would send them in to beat me almost every night, simply because I wasn't doing what I was told. As a child, that level of fear and unpredictability was overwhelming. I felt completely powerless.

They would lock me up in a cell with only a bucket to use as a toilet. The cell was unhygienic, cold, and frightening. They would keep me locked in there for long periods of time, and I remember feeling trapped and forgotten. One time, one of the pupils was being beaten by a member of staff, and I tried to stick up for them. Because of that, I was beaten again and locked up for even longer. It felt like no matter what I did, I was punished.

I also remember being given a part time job at the local hairdresser's. My wages were stolen, and I even found evidence of it. When I tried to report it to the people who were supposed to help me, the staff at the institution didn't believe me. Instead of supporting me, they punished me. They used to take a cut of my wages as well, and when I didn't have enough money to give them, I was punished again. It made me feel completely unheard and unprotected.

I am now 68 years old, and I still have nightmares about what happened. The impact on my mental health has been significant and long lasting. There are many things I can remember, but some memories are so painful that I struggle to even think about them. They used to deprive me of food and make me skip meals. I remember having to beg for water. The way I was treated was inhumane and degrading. No child — no person — should ever be treated that way. You wouldn't treat an animal like that, yet it was my daily reality.

All of these experiences have stayed with me throughout my life. The fear, the violence, the neglect, and the constant humiliation shaped who I became and left emotional scars that have never fully healed.
