How to complete this section

You may have been abused in one relevant care setting, or in several different ones.

For this part of the application form, please provide a statement about each care setting you were abused in.

You can do this in any order that makes sense to you.

There are pages for 4 care settings included in this form. If you need more copies, you can:

- contact a case worker

Please remember:

- there are no wrong answers - if Redress Scotland needs more or different information, your case worker will get in touch with you and let you know

As soon as I went in there, I felt like I was never welcome. From the very beginning, there was this heavy sense that I didn't belong, almost like I was an inconvenience rather than a young person who needed support. The staff would give me the silent treatment, and it was clear they had their favourites. Watching them treat others with warmth while I was ignored made me feel even smaller. It chipped away at me day after day.

I felt humiliated by the way the staff behaved toward me. The way they belittled me, the way they acted as if my feelings didn't matter, and the way they ignored me when I needed help—it all left me feeling worthless. Being treated like that at such a young age made me doubt myself constantly. It was like I was invisible unless they wanted to make me feel worse.

Because of how unwelcome and unhappy I felt, I ran away a lot. I remember one time packing all my things into a suitcase and going to my friend's house because I just couldn't take it anymore. I didn't want to be there. I felt trapped, alone, and desperate for someone to care. The staff were really not nice to me at all, and I felt like I had no safe place to turn to.

These experiences have stayed with me throughout my entire life. They didn't just fade away when I left. I developed PTSD, and I've struggled with my mental health ever since. I was later diagnosed with bipolar disorder, and I know that the emotional damage from that place played a huge part in how things unfolded for me. The constant rejection, the silence, the humiliation—it all left deep scars.

What happened to me there has affected every part of my life. It shaped how I saw myself, how I trusted people, and how I coped with stress and emotions. I was just a quiet kid who needed understanding, but instead I was made to feel like I didn't matter. Even now, as an adult, I still feel the weight of those experiences. They changed me in ways I've had to work hard to overcome, and although I've tried to move forward, the impact has never fully left me.
