I was taken into care from around the age of 8 or 9. My earliest memories of being removed from my family are filled with fear, confusion, and grief. I was already emotionally vulnerable at that age, and being taken into care left me terrified and feeling completely alone.

I believe my first placement was at a children's home called Easterhouse. From the moment I arrived, I knew I was not safe. There was a mixture of older children and babies, and the environment was chaotic, violent, and completely out of control. Children were screaming, fighting, and running riot constantly. I was frightened all the time.

I was physically abused from a young age by other children. I was pushed around, punched, and beaten regularly. I was badly bullied by older children, and the staff did nothing to protect me. In fact, staff allowed it to happen and at times seemed to find it funny. I remember crying and begging to phone my mum, but my calls were stopped, which meant I had no way of telling her what was happening to me. I was isolated, frightened, and had absolutely no support or anyone to turn to.

I was often sent to my room and kept there all day, out of the way, as if I did not matter. I do not remember exactly how long I stayed at Easterhouse, but I remember how helpless and unsafe I felt there.

After this, I was moved to Balrossy in Kilmacolm, and this is where the abuse became far worse. From the moment I arrived, I was treated with cruelty and violence by staff. They punched me, restrained me aggressively, and kept me separated from other children. I was constantly injured.

My mum noticed cuts and bruises all over my body during weekend visits. Instead of protecting me, the home stopped my visits, leaving me trapped in that place with no escape. I was stuck there being abused.

The staff members involved included Andrew, David, and Jim. Andrew was a big man who would restrain me by sitting on me and crushing me until I could not breathe properly. This was terrifying and made me feel like I was going to die.

I was taken to the shower rooms and told staff had to watch me while I was naked. This happened every day. It made me feel deeply uncomfortable, ashamed, and humiliated. I knew this was wrong. The abuse escalated further when staff came into my room at night and touched me sexually and inappropriately. They told me it was a "massage" and said that they had to give us massages, and that we also had to give them massages. This was sexual abuse. I was a child and had no ability to consent. I was being sexually abused on a regular basis.

If I cried, resisted, or begged them to stop, I was punished. Staff would use older and bigger children to beat me and terrorise me. I lived in constant fear for my life. Every day was terrifying.

I was often going to bed hungry. This was not because food was unavailable, but because I was so emotionally distressed and frightened that I could not eat. I was also allowed to smoke and drink alcohol while underage, which led to addiction at a very young age. There was no care, no protection, and no concern for my wellbeing.

I remained in Balrossy for approximately three to three and a half years. Those years felt like torture. I was physically assaulted, sexually abused, emotionally terrorised, and completely abandoned.

After this, I was moved to Kibble. Although it was not as chaotic as Balrossy, the abuse continued immediately. A staff member named Stevie, who had ginger hair, was extremely violent and cruel. He would stand over me, punch me, pull my hair, and drag me down corridors by my ears. Another staff member named Brian behaved in the same way.

I was kept secluded and isolated and was not allowed to form friendships. Everyone was too scared to speak out. I regularly witnessed other children being beaten by staff. Physical punishment was routine and involved punching and kicking. Some staff appeared to enjoy this violence, and other children were forced to watch it.

This placement caused severe psychological damage. I became suicidal while I was still a child. I was neglected, beaten constantly, and stripped of any sense of safety or self-worth. I remained in Kibble until the age of 16.

At 16, I was placed into a hostel in Glasgow. I had no education, no life skills, and no understanding of how to live independently. I had been institutionalised through abuse, not prepared for life. Although the hostel removed me from immediate physical abuse, the damage had already been done.

The impact of my experiences in care has been lifelong. I suffer from PTSD, anxiety, and depression. I have struggled with drug addiction as a way to block out the trauma and pain of my childhood. I have never known love, safety, or trust. I have no support network and continue to live with the consequences of the abuse I endured.

My childhood was stolen from me. The abuse I suffered in care destroyed my sense of self and permanently altered the course of my life. What happened to me was horrific, sustained, and avoidable. My life will never be the same again.
