At the age of 13, I was taken away from my family. I was scared and extremely nervous. I had an abusive father, and I did not know what to expect. I was taken to Wood Dean Home in Blantyre at the age of 13. I was meant to be there for a weekend, but I was placed there by the police under an unruly certificate.

Although the placement itself was not immediately violent, I was terrified and left completely alone. I was waiting for comfort, reassurance, or support, but no one bothered with me during the entire three weeks I was there. I felt abandoned, frightened, and invisible. After this, I was picked up and taken back to the Children's Panel, where I waited all day listening to adults speak about me as if I was not there. This made me extremely anxious and distressed. The decision was made for me to return home, even though I explained that my father was abusive and that I was scared to go back.

I was taken back into care and placed in Bellshill Children's Assessment Centre. The maximum stay there was meant to be three weeks, but my time was repeatedly dragged out and reset three times. I ended up being there for nine weeks. None of the staff had heard of this happening before, and everyone was confused. I genuinely felt forgotten about and unwanted. During those nine weeks, I began panicking constantly. I was not allowed out of the place at all. I was completely secluded and kept away from everyone. The staff did not bother with me unless they were trying to provoke a reaction. I felt lost, lonely, and isolated. I spent most of my time stuck in my room because staff regularly made nasty comments towards me. This had a severe impact on my mental health. Eventually, I was placed back home. At the age of 15

Your statement for Care setting 3 continued

I was taken back into care again and placed in Cardross, Dunbartonshire, for three weeks. As soon as I arrived, I knew it was nothing like anywhere I had been before. My anxiety immediately became overwhelming. There were children running riot, screaming, and fighting each other. Right away, I was taken by the social worker, stripped out of my clothes, and put straight into my room, which was then locked. There were bars on all the windows. It felt like a prison.

During those three weeks, I kept myself to myself because that was all I knew how to do, and I believed staying out of the way was safer. I was constantly scared and nervous. The staff would scream, shout, and roar at us. After three weeks, I was placed back home again for a few months, but it was not long before I was taken back into care once more.

I was then placed back in Cardross, Dunbartonshire, for around four months, and this was where the mental and physical abuse was the worst it had ever been. I remember staff members such as Andy, Sue, Doods, and Duncan (the manager). These were vicious staff members, especially Andy. He was ex-army military and treated us like animals. We were pushed around, forced to walk in single file, and expected to have everything in perfect order. If it wasn't, we would be restrained with so much force that it caused pain.

I was provided with cigarettes from a very young age, and by the time I was back in Cardross, I was addicted. I remember the head, Duncan, would give us four cigarettes each. He would also play the children against each other, offering "special treatment" for an extra two cigarettes. This was manipulative, humiliating, and caused conflict between the children, making us feel like we had to compete against each other for basic things.

During this second placement, I was regularly targeted by staff with nasty name-calling. I only had two pairs of boxer shorts, and staff would deliberately embarrass me about this in front of the other children. They laughed, pointed me out, and degraded me. This was deeply humiliating and damaging to my self-worth.

The showers were always assisted by adults who watched us shower. I do not believe this was acceptable, and it made me feel uncomfortable and unsafe.

Between being in care and being at home, my mental health was severely affected. I was being abused and terrorised in care, and abused again at home. This was completely out of my control. I have always suffered from anxiety, PTSD, and nightmares as a result of what I experienced. I struggle with trust and feel like I have always been alone. These experiences have stayed with me throughout my life.

I will never forget my time in care, or the people who made my life hell.
