I have been in and out of care since basically birth. My early memories are very vague, and I cannot remember all of the places I was placed in when I was very young. I know I moved around a lot and never had any stability. It wasn't until I was around 10 years old that I realised I was living in a place called Arden Care Home in Castlemilk, Glasgow.

From the moment I arrived at Arden, the abuse started. The staff were nasty towards me. They pushed me about, bullied me, and called me names. I was treated badly on a daily basis. Staff would drag me into rooms and lock me away on my own. I was isolated and secluded, and food was often withheld as punishment. The abuse here was mostly mental and emotional, but it was extremely frightening. Being locked away, picked on, and bullied by the very people who were meant to care for me made me feel worthless and unwanted.

The other children bullied me as well, especially because I was younger than them. They picked on me and made fun of me because I didn't have my mum. I remember feeling completely alone and helpless.

While I was living at Arden, I was fostered out to a family for a few days. During that time, I was involved in a serious car accident. I was taken to hospital with a broken arm and a broken jaw. The foster father died instantly in the crash. I was in hospital for six weeks. I was in a very bad state, physically and mentally. This happened just after my birthday, which makes the memory even more painful. After I was discharged from hospital, I was sent straight back to Arden Care Home, where nothing had changed. I stayed at Arden until I was about 12 years old

I was then moved and placed in Grice Children's Home in Bridge of Weir, where I remained for around two and a half years, from the age of 12 to 15. I have very bad memories from Grice, and this was one of the worst periods of my life.

At Grice, we were given no proper education. We were kept secluded and isolated. We were not allowed to play or have fun like normal children. The staff deliberately tried to turn us against each other whenever they could. I was bullied again, constantly. Food was very limited, and if you were "naughty" or talked back, you were punished by being denied food and sent to bed hungry. This happened to me many times.

The staff screamed directly in my face, grabbed me, and dragged me down corridors. They slapped me across the head, ordered me about, laughed at me, pushed me, and deliberately tormented me. I was made to feel small and powerless. I was kept away from my siblings, which caused me a lot of distress. At the same time, staff allowed my sibling to go out the back for a smoke with them, even though we were far too young. The rules were inconsistent and unfair, and they used this to control and confuse us.

Most weekends, my time away was taken from me, and I was locked away as punishment. The staff would deliberately embarrass me in front of the other children. They would encourage us to fight each other for their own entertainment and would stand back and watch instead of stopping it. If you asked the staff a question, they would moan, groan, and make you feel like a nuisance. We were forced to raise ourselves. Grice felt like a prison.

The staff clearly had favourites. Some children were allowed out and treated better, while others, including me, were targeted. They played us off against each other constantly. I lived in fear every day. I was terrorised in Grice until I was 15 years old.

Your statement for Care setting 3 continued

I was moved again and placed in Jailsland in Ayrshire, where I stayed until I was 17. I was transferred there suddenly and without warning. My first memories of Jailsland are of being threatened. This place felt like a young offenders institution rather than a care setting. I was terrified of the people around me and completely out of my depth.

Here, I was subjected to serious physical abuse. I would have my trousers pulled down and be hit six times with a leather belt on my bare backside. This happened regularly. The other children were much older and felt like adults to me. They bullied me daily, pushed me around, and hit me. The staff allowed this to happen and did nothing to protect me. I was completely alone.

Some children were allowed to go home, but staff reminded me daily that I would be staying because I had nowhere else to go. This was deeply hurtful and reinforced that I was unwanted. Food was provided, but if I didn't like it, I was sent to bed hungry again. Staff screamed at us until they were blue in the face. They acted like police officers, bullying and controlling me constantly. I was ordered to march instead of walk. The leather belt was used for almost any punishment.

I was left with massive scars and marks all over my back and backside. Staff assisted us to the showers. They didn't watch us, but they would talk to us, and if we didn't respond, we were punished. When restraining me, they used excessive force, which caused pain and fear. The place was run like the military. I had to hand wash my clothes, iron them daily, and lay them out on my bed exactly as instructed.

I never had a normal childhood. I lived in constant fear and humiliation. By the time I left at 17, my mental health was in a very bad state. I felt like my life was over before it had even begun. I was struggling severely, but no one cared or offered support.

After this, I was placed into another foster care family for the remaining time before I turned 18. I cannot remember their names. My education had already suffered badly, and I struggled to build relationships with people. This placement was "alright" compared to others, but I was still picked at, treated with arrogance, and made to feel like a burden. The only thing that kept me going was knowing I was nearly 18 and could finally leave.

When I did leave care, I had no guidance, no support, and no trust in anyone. I entered the real world completely alone, with severe mental health issues.

Since then, my life has been a constant struggle. I suffer from anxiety, PTSD, and depression, which have affected me my entire life since childhood. I try to block these memories out, but I will never forget the abuse I endured in care.

The trauma has stayed with me to this day and continues to affect my relationships, my confidence, my mental health, and my ability to feel safe or trust others.
