You can do this in any order that makes sense to you.

There are pages for 4 care settings included in this form. If you need more copies, you can:

- contact a case worker

I remember feeling terrified and completely confused the day I was taken into care. I was still a child. I did not understand why I was being taken away from my family. I was allowed to see my mum at weekends, so in my mind there was no reason why I could not just go and live with her. Instead, I was taken from my dad without warning. They came to my school and removed me without even allowing me to say goodbye to him. That moment has stayed with me all my life. I felt powerless, frightened, and abandoned.

I was placed into Rimbleton House, which was described as a short-term emergency unit in Glenrothes. I stayed there for approximately 12 weeks.

From the very beginning, I felt scared and alone. No one properly explained to me what was happening or why I was there. I was a child in crisis, and instead of comfort or reassurance, I experienced neglect and cruelty.

Rimbleton House felt like a jail. We were locked in most of the time and only allowed out with staff supervision. I was often left alone with my thoughts, panicking and crying, with no emotional support. I was picked on by staff members who seemed to target me. One staff member in particular, a man called Robin, would restrain me. He would force me to the ground, sit on me, and pin me down so tightly that I could not breathe properly. I could not move. My body would ache afterwards, and I was unable to get myself up off the floor. I remember the fear of not being able to breathe and thinking I might die. These restraints were not calming interventions — they were violent and frightening.

I was heartbroken because they stopped me from seeing my dad. I was already traumatised from being taken without warning, and then contact was restricted. I constantly worried about him and felt completely cut off from the only security I had known. I was treated as if I had done something wrong simply by being upset and confused
