In Part 1, you will have provided information about any relevant care settings you were abused in.

In Part 3, you need to provide a statement about your abuse. You can choose how you want to provide your statement. You can complete Q1, Q2, Q3 and Q4. Or you can:

- submit a previous statement (for example, a copy of a statement given to the police)
- write your statement in another format that is better suited to you

How to complete this section

You may have been abused in one relevant care setting, or in several different ones.

For this part of the application form, please provide a statement about each care setting you were abused in.

For example, if you were abused in 3 relevant care settings, please provide 3 statements.

You can do this in any order that makes sense to you.

There are pages for 4 care settings included in this form. If you need more copies, you can:

- contact a case worker
- make a copy yourself
- print additional pages from mygov.scot/redress

Please remember:

- there are no wrong answers - if Redress Scotland needs more or different information, your case worker will get in touch with you and let you know
- do not worry about your spelling
- use as much or as little space as you need to give your information - you can continue on additional pages if you want to

When I was a Neil Street children's home

I still carry the weight of what happened to me at Neil Street children's home. I was a bed wetter, something I had no control over, yet it became the thing everyone used to punish and humiliate me. Every night I went to sleep with a knot in my stomach, knowing I'd wake up to shame, not support. Instead of helping me or treating me with kindness, the staff encouraged the older kids to bully me. It wasn't just teasing; it was emotional abuse that chipped away at me day after day.

When I'd come back from being out, I never knew what I was walking into. Sometimes I'd find my bed soaked deliberately, puddles poured over it to mock me. It was like they wanted to make sure I never forgot what they thought of me. They even told kids at my school that I was a bed wetter, turning something private into a weapon. The humiliation followed me everywhere, not just inside those walls.

There were days when they wouldn't feed me, as if withholding food was just another tool to keep me small and powerless. The meanness wasn't subtle; it was open, encouraged, and constant. Staff and kids alike joined in, whether it was hitting, name-calling, or just making sure I knew I didn't belong. It's hard to explain how isolating it felt to be surrounded by people who were supposed to care for me but instead seemed determined to break me down.

And yet, in all of that darkness, there was one person who didn't treat me like I was something to be ashamed of. His name was Tom. He didn't make a big show of protecting me or try to pretend he could fix everything, but he treated me like a human being. He spoke to me with respect. He didn't laugh at me. He didn't join in. In a place where cruelty felt normalised, his kindness stood out like a small light. I held onto that more than he probably ever realised. Looking back, I can still feel the confusion, the fear, and the loneliness of those years. But I can also feel the resilience it forced me to build. What happened to me wasn't my fault. I was a child who deserved care, safety, and dignity. Even now, telling the story in my own words feels like reclaiming a piece of myself that they tried to take.
