During my time at Eskdale House, it was horrendous. I was only supposed to spend six weeks there, but I ended up being kept for eight months. When I first arrived, I was scared and unsure of what was happening. I remember being dropped off and asking if I could ring my family because I was upset and crying. Instead of comforting me, they gave me two tablets. I didn't even make it back to my room before I passed out. Looking back, I realise they drugged me. At the time, I didn't understand it, but it became clear that they were drugging a lot of people there.

After that first night, I realised this was something they did regularly. They would drug us at night so they could have parties in the office. It was frightening to know that the people who were supposed to care for us were deliberately putting us in vulnerable situations.

Multiple times, I woke up to find men in the bed with me, sexually abusing me. It wasn't just me — it was happening to other children as well. There were many cases where people were being abused, and it felt like no one was safe. I remember being in the bath, and there was a cubicle nearby. Men would watch me, and then the next thing I knew, I would be asleep, as if I had been drugged again, and I would realise I had been sexually assaulted. It happened so many times that I can't even remember every incident. It became such a regular occurrence that it almost felt expected, which is something no child should ever experience.

There were far too many cases where me and other children were drugged and sexually assaulted. It was constant, and it left me feeling terrified, confused, and completely powerless. The environment was unsafe in every possible way, and the people who were supposed to protect us were the ones causing the harm.

These experiences have stayed with me throughout my life. The fear, the trauma, the confusion, and the betrayal have had a massive impact on my mental health and my sense of safety. What happened at Eskdale House wasn't just wrong — it was life changing in the worst possible way, and the emotional scars are still there. It has got me to the point where I have always worked independent jobs as I do not like socialising with other people.
