I was 10 years old when I was placed in Southannon Residential School. During my time there, I experienced physical abuse on a regular basis. I was hit, smacked, and restrained in ways that left bruises on my body. The staff would shout at me, call me names, and speak to me in ways that were meant to intimidate and belittle me. The verbal abuse became something I learned to expect every day.

When the fire alarm went off, instead of being kept safe, I would be locked in my room and not woken up or checked on. I remember lying there terrified, knowing that if there had been a real fire, I could have died because no one came to make sure I was safe. That fear stayed with me for years.

I was also sexually abused by members of staff. I was raped by a staff member, and this was not a one off incident. It happened on more than one occasion and became a regular occurrence during my time there. These experiences left me feeling powerless, frightened, and completely alone.

There were times when staff deliberately made my living conditions unbearable. On one occasion, they smashed my window and forced me to sleep in the cold for an entire weekend. I had no choice but to endure it, and there was no one I could turn to for help or protection.

I was not the only child who suffered. I witnessed other children going through similar abuse—physical, verbal, and emotional. Seeing what happened to them only added to my fear, because it showed me that what I was experiencing was not accidental or isolated. It was part of a pattern of cruelty that affected many of us.

All of this continued for the full four to five years I was at Southannon Residential School. Those years were marked by fear, pain, and a complete lack of safety. The impact of what happened to me there has stayed with me throughout my life.
