At Rimbeldon House, I was disruptive and often misbehaved. One staff member, Dave, would hold me down on the floor. I remember multiple times when we would be rolling around on the floor together.

Your statement for Care setting 2 continued

Melbow House was a negative experience; the staff would hit and intimidate me. On one occasion, some boys and I went camping, where we stole glue and got caught sniffing it on the beach. A staff member named Bill Smurphy caught us, pulled us off the wall, and started kicking and punching us. My friends and I ended up with bruises all over. Physical abuse was a regular occurrence; if we refused to take part in gym activities, we would be pinned down on the ground. We played a game called manhunt, where the staff were in one group and the kids in another, and they would charge at us and hit us. I suspect the staff were all ex-army cadets, as they would laugh and mock us. If I acted out, I was sent to my room without food until the next day. I was locked in the gym for over two hours because something was happening in the home, and the staff forgot about us. I was not allowed any home visits, which were taken away due to my repeated attempts to escape. There was a staff member named Steve Cowen who would come to the rooms, and one night he got into my bed, touched my leg, and started moving up towards my groin. That incident made me start running away

Your statement for Care setting 3 continued

My frequent escape attempts eventually led to my transfer to Rossie Farm. Rossie Farm was an improvement since I was older, and the staff tended to target the younger kids. I believe that if I hadn't been in care, my life would have turned out differently. I still have flashbacks, and talking about these events causes me stress, which triggers my epilepsy and results in seizures.
