You can do this in any order that makes sense to you.

There are pages for 4 care settings included in this form. If you need more copies, you can:

- contact a case worker
- make a copy yourself
- print additional pages from mygov.scot/redress

Please remember:

- there are no wrong answers - if Redress Scotland needs more or different information, your case worker will get in touch with you and let you know
- do not worry about your spelling
- use as much or as little space as you need to give your information - you can continue on additional pages if you want to

I was just a child. A vulnerable, defenceless child who was placed at Quarriers House and left in the hands of people who should have protected me, nurtured me, and made me feel safe. Instead, what happened to me there broke me in ways that I am still trying to piece back together today.

I suffered mental abuse that got inside my head and never truly left. It made me question my own worth, my own reality, and my own mind. I was sexually abused by staff members — people in positions of authority and trust — who took advantage of a child who had no power to stop them. The violation of that trust is something I cannot put into words. It cut to my very core and left wounds that no one could ever see, but that I have felt every single day of my life since.

I was emotionally destroyed. I was made to feel that I was nothing. That I mattered to no one. That no one was coming to save me. And I was physically abused too — a staff member slammed my head against a wall. I remember it. I will always remember it. The pain, the shock, the terrifying realisation that there was no one there to protect me.

And yet, as if my own suffering was not enough to bear, I was forced to witness other children being abused as well. I had to look into the eyes of other little ones who were hurting, just as I was hurting, and I was powerless to help them. That helplessness haunts me still.

When I finally left Quarriers House, I thought perhaps I could leave it all behind. But trauma does not work that way. It followed me out of those doors and into every single day of my adult life.

It has affected every relationship I have ever had, every moment of peace I have ever tried to find. It has taken so much from me — opportunities, happiness, the ability to simply feel safe in my own skin. I live with PTSD as a direct result of what was done to me in that place. There are days when the memories are so vivid and so overwhelming that it feels as though I am right back there, that small and frightened child, with no one to turn to and nowhere to run.

I deserved better. Every single child in that place deserved better. We were children. We were supposed to be kept safe. And we were failed — completely, catastrophically, and unforgivably failed.
