During my time at Scalloway Park, I experienced daily physical violence from the staff, often more than once a day. The abuse was severe; they would strike me in my kidneys, testicles, and penis, twisting them painfully. Sometimes, they would hit me so hard in the stomach that I would lose my breath. They laughed while doing this and continued to mock me afterward to humiliate me. I was struck with brushes and possibly a metal ruler across my wrists. While they never physically forced a bar of soap into my mouth, they would smear soap on dry bread or toast and make me eat it. They didn't limit themselves to soap; they also used vinegar, hot sauce, or even shower gel. As a child, this seemed trivial, but looking back as an adult, I realize how wrong it was. There were many instances where I was thrown into a cell and isolated, sometimes with cuts on my head. The staff would blame my injuries on my own struggles when they were twisting me around. I did wet the bed during my stay, and for that, I faced humiliation. They would repeatedly bring it up while physically punishing me. I was prescribed Ritalin for my ADHD, and if I ever refused to take it, I would be denied meals. Food was weaponized against me, leaving me to go hungry. I escaped from this place on several occasions, and upon my return, I was met with indifference and barred from joining any activities with the other kids. They would take my shoes away to stop me from running away again. There was a bullying culture here, and the staff were aware of it but did nothing to intervene. They had their favourites who were even encouraged to bully other children as they pleased. During shower time, there were moments when I had privacy, but there were also times when staff would enter without warning. They would come in whenever they wanted. Occasionally, I had to wait in line naked with other boys for a wash, but this was not a common occurrence. I complained to my social worker multiple times about my treatment here, but my concerns were never taken seriously. Eventually, social services intervened, stating that the home could not manage me, and I was returned to my mother's care for a few weeks before being transferred to Oakbank.

Full Statement

When I arrived at Oakbank, the violence I faced from the staff was significantly worse than what I had endured at Scalloway Park. I was punched, kicked, and slapped daily. They would always assign one male staff member to deal with me when he was on duty, and he was a large man. At times, there would be 10 to 12 staff members holding me down while I was being restrained. I was whipped with a cane, usually across my buttocks and the backs of my legs. When they felt they could not control me, they would use a hose to blast me with freezing cold water. I recall times when the staff would take me to the kitchen after the cook had finished, promising me ice lollies. However, they would then claim there were none or that the fridge was locked, which only served to provoke me. After this, they would taunt me with the ice lollies and then lock me in a cupboard. I was confined to a cupboard numerous times during my stay here. I sustained several injuries while I was here, but no one believed me when I tried to explain what had happened. They always accused me of banging my head against the wall. It felt like they were protecting one another and looking out for themselves. Bedwetting was an issue that continued from Scalloway Park, and once again, I faced humiliation, degradation, and even physical punishment for it. There were times when I would be abruptly awakened and taken from my bed at night for room searches, sometimes for something as insignificant as a missing fork from the kitchen. There were nights when I couldn't sleep for three or four days straight, due to a combination of my medication, my neurodiversity, and the loudness of other neurodivergent children at night. Some children with autism were severely affected and really shouldn't have been there; I felt the same way about myself. I experienced starvation on numerous occasions here, often daily. This was typically due to behavioural issues, and I would simply be left to go hungry. I attempted to escape from here many times, and when I did, I sought drugs to numb the pain of everything happening to me. Upon my return, I would be twisted up and locked in my room. There was a significant amount of bullying at Oakbank, and the staff would often encourage it. Oakbank was much larger than Scalloway and had both boys and girls. I was always denied home visits with my family. I would watch other children go home to their families or foster parents on weekends while I remained there. Being in care for so long meant I missed out on precious childhood moments with my sister, moments that I can never reclaim. There is no doubt that my time in care has negatively impacted every part of my life. It changed my worldview and harmed my mental health. As a neurodivergent individual, the environment I was placed in never felt safe, which hindered my ability to learn. As an adult, I have struggled to maintain a job due to a lack of education and skills. For many years, I lived in a state of high alert instead of receiving the support I needed, which has had a cascading effect on my life. Although I have never been incarcerated, my experiences in care have left me feeling institutionalized. I now realize that I became accustomed to that kind of environment; I got used to the shouting, bullying, and violence. I currently experience issues with my ankles and wrists from injuries sustained during that time, and there are moments when I walk down the street and my knees give out.
