Diagnosis: Intramedullary nail for mid shaft fracture of humerus on 11 May 2009

I reviewed this lady today in the clinic. She reports no improvement today. She continues to have pain in the shoulder.

On examination the movements were worse than at her last attendance in November. She was limited about 10° of elevation due to pain. She had no more than 10° of external rotation. She was unable to internally rotate her greater trochanter. X-ray taken today shows no evidence of union of the fracture.

I have discussed her case with Mr Singh, and we will see her again in four weeks time, with x-ray on arrival.

Yours sincerely
