RZ		History: went to A&E yesterday with multiple syptoms, bloods etc all nad, told them he thinks related to rivaroxaban, they said to stop one day and see if it makes any difference, he says felt 100% better- even managed to get some sleep last night, doesn't want to take them any more. Note stopped warfarin due to labile INR and also felt unwell on edoxaban Plan: unlikely linked to rivaroxaban but agreed to change to above and rx here if no better (R) Apixaban 2.5mg tablets - 14 tablet - take one twice daily Apixaban 2.5mg tablets - 14 tablet - take one twice daily Ended 03 Oct 2018 Re-Authorised by June Jackson

JC	History: As above : previously investigated by Gastro for dysphagia, weight loss and constipation : discharged from follow-up Jan 2018 : was also due to see Endocrinologists re: sweating after meals with negative diabetes screening but never came to fruition : attended A&E from here last week and admitted : presented at that time with bloody diarrhoea and feeling generally unwell : bloods unremarkable : observed and no further bleeding so allowed home : returned 2d later and treated with supps, followed by enema : passed bloody stool whilst in the department so observed again but haemodynamically stable : and allowed home with Gastro OPA in 2 weeks : sent home with supps/movicol : since coming home bowels open and no further bleeding : discussed that for last few months stool has been white : says colour returned last week and since then has varied while through grey through brown : says he is getting lots of RUQ abdo pain : not jaundiced : says still sweating profusely about an hour after meals : says not sweating at other times : no weight loss on this occasion : says he "never feels well" : constantly tired, run-down and generally lacking in energy : has never been a drinker : previously dependent on heroin but clean for 6 yrs : known hep c : says previously tested negative for HIV many years ago
	Examination: Alert. Orientated. Looks much better today. Remains pale. Not sweaty. Not jaundiced. Obs as below. Abdomen soft, undistended and non-tender. Not guarded. No rebound. DRE: soft stool per rectum, no blood, no melaena, no masses.
	Plan: 1. Up to date bloods, urine and stool ahead of Gastro OPA in 2w
	2. I have already referred for USS upper abdomen ? gallstones
	3. Use supps/movicol as needed as per hospital instructions
	4. SOS any further rectal bleeding
	5. Refer back to Endocrinology with up to date diabetes screening

RB	CT THORAX AND ABDOMEN AND PELVIS: THIS 66 year old gentleman came to us with central chest pain associated with palpitation, SOB and dizziness that occurs 1 hour after having food. Reviewed by gastro for postprandial dumping syndrome. Patient also complaints of changed bowel habits and loss of weight in the last 2 months. Scopes done that did not show anything relevant as per gastro team. Patient was seen very jittery and shivering when reviewed- says no alcohol or drug used in several years . He is been like this for last 1 year. Patient had some ecg changes on admission that is awaiting review by ACS nurse. Could you kindly perform a scan for this patient in view of his history to look for any underlying pathology please. ENTERED BY: Divya Sasidaran BLEEP: NOT KNOWN unable to cannulate CT chest, abdomen and pelvis with contrast: CLINICAL HISTORY Change in bowel habits with weight loss. ? Underlying pathology FINDINGS No previous CT exam for comparison. Non-contrast scan (unable to cannulate). There is a 10 mm node in the right lung upper lobe, tethered to pleura and associated with small bronchiectasis most likely to be chronic but other aetiology cannot be excluded. Bilateral small apical scarring is noted. No other significant lung pathology is identified. No visible pleural or pericardial effusion. Bilateral axillary and mediastinal lymph nodes are not enlarged. Focal calcifications are noted in the right liver lobe. Spleen, pancreas, biliary system, adrenal glands, kidneys and the urinary bladder are without significant pathological findings. No obvious colon associated soft tissue mass is identified within unprepared bowels. Lymph nodes in abdomen and pelvis are not enlarged. No evidence of concerning focal bony lesions. CONCLUSION No obvious malignancy is identified. No evidence of significant lymphadenopathy. There is a 10 mm node in the right lung upper lobe most likely to be chronic but 3 months followup to confirm stability is recommended. Electronically signed by: Dr Marcel Gorup GMC:7467564 Consultant Radiologist Everlight Radiology Reported by: RRO REPORTING 1 / EXTERNAL CT THORAX AND ABDOMEN AND PELVIS Report, Borderline. History: Came for CT results : discussed lung nodule : says someone at the hospital did ring him and they told him he would be seen again in 3 months but does not know who rang, from which dept. etc. and is not sure if he is going straight to CT in 3m or clinic etc. : agreed I will write to Resp to formally request nodule surveillance : otherwise CT was normal with no evidence of solid organ malignancy or significant adenopathy

History: Whilst here says he thinks he has a UTI again : recently treated as Enterococcus cultured at 10.4 to 10.5 but no microscopy available at that time : currently c/o few days bilateral loin pain and urinary urgency/frequency : no significant dysuria : no haematuria : says he sometimes notices his urine looks very cloudy and has 'bits' floating in it : no fevers/rigors : no nausea/vomiting
Examination: Alert, Oriented, Pink, Hydrated, Abdomen and renal angles NAD. Urine dip as below - NAD.
O/E - temperature (XaBZA) 38.6 degC
O/E - rate of respiration (235.) 16 Resp/min
Oxygen saturation at periphery (X770D) 98 %
O/E - pulse rate (242.) 88 bpm
O/E - pulse rhythm regular (2431.)
Plan: Discussed events : await MC&S then decide if abx indicated : discussed ongoing symptoms and recurrent LUTS and agreed refer Urology for opinion ? structural renal tract problem not identified on CT ?? would benefit from cystoscopy

	History: Telephone encounter (9N31) pt rang asking me about a letter from the hospital. Advised that I do not know about this and had asked that he speak to a Dr as they sent a letter to the consultant about him. I am unable to explain what they are concerned about, although I can give a meter and show him how to use this. I would suggest he sees a Dr first to explain the letter as pt seemed unaware of the hospital involvement

VS	History: states that this morning he tested his blood sugars and it was 0. Advise that if this was the case he would have been unconscious, suspect it was an error, rang the surgery because he had misplaced his test strips and needed some urgently however has now found them, states repeated his test and it was 3.4mmols and he then ate a mars bar and it came up to 5.6mmols, advised that it is good that he repeated and that it worked but chocolate is not a suitable treatment for a hypo as it is too slow acting. Adv coke, jelly babies or jelly beans would be better and not to use leukozade as they have reduced the sugar, was given a hypo book with info when seen last wk 18:36 - Surgery: Dr Antonio Penart-Lanau (Clinical Practitioner Access Role)

History: Came in to discuss ? UTI : previously known to Urology (2017) with LUTS and on tamsulosin : currently getting some mild lower abdo pain and urine is very cloudy : no specific dysuria : hasn't noticed any blood : no fevers/rigors, nausea/vomiting or loin pain

Examination: Alert, Orientated, Pink, Hydrated, Seems well in himself. Abdomen and renal angles NAD.

Urine does look cloudy but dip entirely negative as below.

		Conclusion:
		The nodule in the right upper lobe is again stable. No new nodules demonstrated.
		Reported by:
		Lindsey Burn, Advanced Reporting Practitioner RA39357
		CT Lung Nodule Follow Up, 17/05/2019:
		Unenhanced spiral acquisition through the chest. Comparison is made with the previous study of 30/10/2018.
		No significantly enlarged hilar or mediastinal nodes.
		Pleural space clear. Normal cardiac configuration. No significant abnormality in the visualised upper abdomen. No sinister bone lesion.
		On lung settings there is mild upper zone emphysema. The subpleural linear opacity in the right upper lobe is volumetrically smaller than on the initial study and consistent with scarring. No further imaging follow-up required
