Problem Anxiety with depression
 History History feels low, no interest, poor concentration, unsure of trigger for low mood, 'this is the worse i've been' has been speaking to  his addictions cpn who is going to try and arrange a soon appt with psychiatrist, thinks triggers may be that because  is leaving and also there has been a few deaths (suicide and overdoses) of his friends, I asked if he had suicidal thoughts, his response was 'he thought about it briefly but would never do it', feels the increase in mirtazapine didn't help a huge amount, not sure what he's looking for but happy to receive any help,
 Examination Examination affect reactive, no active suicidal thoughts, no psychotic symptoms, speech monotonous, good eye contact, good insight.
 Comment Comment I said I would write to Dr Kesavulou, not sure what else to add in terms of meds, but may benefit from counselling etc.

OUTPATIENT NOTES

E : I reviewed Mr McHarg in Mr Muirhead's Clinic today. He sustained a stable wedge compression fracture of L1 following a road traffic accident at the end of October last year. He is now fully mobile and experiences little discomfort from the fracture.

On examination he has a normal range of movement of his lumbar spine.

T : I have discharged him from the Clinic today with no further follow-up.

DIAGNOSIS - ROAD ACCIDENT

This chap was apparently crossing the road when he was hit by a car injuring his right leg. X-rays of pelvis, femur, tibia, fibula, cervical spine and skull were normal. X-rays of his foot revealed small fractures of the proximal phalanx of his right 4th and 5th toes. There was a wound associated with the fracture of the 4th toe. This was closed with three sutures. He was given some Augmentin as a prophylactic antibiotic and admitted to the Short Stay Ward overnight.

Observation was satisfactory and he was discharged home the following day for Fracture Clinic follow up appointment.

FRACTURE FOURTH AND FIFTH TOES*13.02.01*HISTORY:

This patient was knocked down when crossing the dual carriageway and was brought into Casualty on 11th February. There were no signs or symptoms of head injury and no problem with the spine, apparently the only injury was his right leg.

X-ray revealed fracture mid-shaft of the proximal phalanx fifth toe and fracture base proximal phalanx fourth toe. The toes were dressed and he was referred to the clinic.

EXAMINATION:

On examination in the clinic today he has obvious haemarthrosis of the knee. There is bruising around the ankle and dorsum of foot. Circulation satisfactory. Alignment of toe satisfactory. It was difficult to examine the knee but there is no obvious instability.

The patient does not wish knee aspiration. The abrasion on his leg is superficial and the ankle joint, although swollen, is stable.

TREATMENT:

Dressings to the toes and leg to be reapplied. Continue as at present with crutches and see in a week's time. Copy to GP. SM/ME

DIAGNOSIS: CELLULITIS RIGHT FOOT

OPERATION: NIL

Mr McHarg was admitted as an emergency with cellulitis relating to an abrasion over his right foot. He had previously suffered a fracture of his fourth and fifth toes but the infection was related to an abrasion over the front of the ankle. It was quite marked cellulitis and he was therefore admitted from the Fracture Clinic. He was not pyrexial, his symptoms gradually settled and he was converted to oral medication.

Review is planned in one week to check on his progress.

OUTPATIENT NOTES

- E : This gentleman was admitted on 20 February with an episode of cellulitis affecting the right foot subsequent to a road traffic accident in which he sustained fractures to the proximal phalanx of the fourth and fifth toes. This was an open wound which was treated with primary closure at the initial incident. He was discharged home with a course of Ciproxin.
- Today he is complaining of continuing pain affecting the right foot and some mild swelling.
- On examination there was no evidence of any active cellulitis. He was tender over the fourth and fifth toes and there was no obvious bony defect and no bruising, no neurovascular deficit. Mr McHarg has also been complaining of some pain in his right knee. Initial X-rays revealed no bony abnormality. There is no swelling or effusion. He wasn't tender to palpation and has a full range of active movement, however, there was slightly limited flexion on passive movement.
- T : I have advised Mr McHarg that he will have pain for some time subsequent to his fractures and associated soft tissue injury. I have discussed this case with Mr Salih and we have discharged him from the Clinic, however, I have advised him that if his symptoms do not resolve he could make a further appointment through his GP.
